

	Object: D11050 adze Museum: Übersee-Museum Bremen Bahnhofplatz 13 28195 Bremen sammlung@uebersee- museum.de Collection: Ozeanien, Ethnographische Sammlungen Inventory number: D11050
--	---

Description

The adze with traditional haft has a wooden curved handle and a rope of plant fibers that connect the shaft to the shell blade. Before 1800, hatchets were the most commonly used tools in daily life by men in Palau. Traditionally, different types of shell and blade shapes were used for different purposes, but not as weapons.

Basic data

Material/Technique:

Measurements:

Events

Created When 1750-1900

Who

Where Palau

[Relationship to location] When

Who

Where Palau

Keywords

- Hatchet