Description

The club is round. In the second third four surfaces are formed, at the same time a decoration begins. Lines formed by triangles run parallel over each other, slightly rising from left to right. The two middle edges are pointed, the side edges become wider towards the top. In the top third, the right half of the club ends horizontally to the right of the center edges while the left surface continues and ends in a point. The club becomes wider towards the top and is curved to the left. At the lower end, a pointed piece is carved out. The following letters are carved on the handle: FAAUAU8A.
