Description

The club is uniformly polished brown and finely sanded. However, there are several cracks on the surface. At the end of the stem, 4 edges are formed, all of which are diverging. This is followed by 2 ribs that protrude slightly on the sides. Between the ribs there are deep indentations. At the level of the deepest point of the indentation, the club continues in 4 faces. The side edges arc up to 2 more ribs that form the top. The ribs run a little wider.
